We are pleased to announce that our Maria Economou has been approved by the Law Society's Children Law accreditation scheme as a member of the Children Law Panel.

Maria is a family law solicitor; however is a specialist in law relating to children, especially care proceedings/public law work. Her accreditation means that she has been recognised by the Law Society as a specialist in children law. She already represents parents and other family members within court proceedings. However she is also now able to represent children within court proceedings.

On being approved on to the specialist panel, Maria explained: "The importance of this is that I am now able to represent vulnerable children in court proceedings. I can be their voice in their time of greatest need."
